Brelsford, W.V. Fishermen of the Bangweulu Swamps. A Study of the Fishing Activities of the Unga Tribe. The Rhodes-Livingstone Papers, Number 12, Livingstone, Northern Rhodesia: The Rhodes-Livingstone Institute, 1946.

Pp. 169; 3 plates; appendices; bibliography

Yale: Bk21 2n 12

[This source, dealing with the fishing economy of the Unga, has not been processed for this file since it deals with a specialized sub-group of the Bemba. Brelsford was District Commissioner in the area for two years and had almost daily contact with the swamp dwelling Unga. —Analyst]

Clarke, H. Stanley. Rough Notes on M'wemba Customs. Man, Vol. 31, Article 266, pp. 274-275. London: The Royal Anthropological Institute of Great Britain and Ireland, 1931.

Yale: Nk10 +M31 v.30-31

[The information contained in this source pertains to marriage, childbirth, initiation rites, path to the grave of the chiefs, and presents when a chief has died. Since Clark cannot vouch for the correctness of the information, some of which he is convinced is wrong, and since it is so meager, the source has not been processed for the Bemba file. —Analyst]

Gluckman, Max. How the Bemba Make Their Living: An Appreciation of Richards' Land Labour and Diet in Northern Rhodesia. Human Problems in British Central Africa Number 3, Pp. 55-75 Livingstone, Northern Rhodesia: 1945.

Yale: Bk21 2nc 1-5

[This source has not been processed because it is essentially a digest of Richards' book on Land Labour and Diet in Northern Rhodesia, (source No. 2, this file). Very little or no new information is contained. —Analyst]

Gluckman, Max. Succession and Civil War Among the Bemba—An Exercise in Anthropological Theory. Human Problems in British Central Africa. Vol. 16. Pp. 6-25. Livingstone, Northern Rhodesia: 1954.

[This article contains no new material on the Bemba. It is concerned mostly with an interpretation of material found in the works of Richards and Brelsford. Since the original data upon which this article was based has been processed for this file, it has not been included in the Bemba file. —Analyst]

Gouldsbury, Cullen. Notes on the Customary Law of the Awemba and Kindred Tribes. Part I. - The Law of Torts; the Law of Crimes. Part II. -The Law of Personal Relations and the Law of Contract. Journal of the African Society, Vol. 14, pp. 367-385; Vol. 15, pp. 36-53, 157-183. London: MacMillan and Co., Limited, 1915-1916.

Yale: Bk2.4 14, 15

[This source is an attempt to treat Bemba customary law in the framework of English Law. Since at the time of the field work all law procedures had been taken over by British courts (the author was a Native Commissioner), only the old men could give information on the former functioning of customary law. Gouldsbury's method was to take instances of torts, crimes and breaches of personal relations known to English law from text-books and propound the principles involved to these native assessors in the form of concrete cases adapted to local conditions. While valuable, this is a highly specialized study and was not, therefore, processed for the Bemba file. —Analyst]

Gouldsbury, Cullen and Hubert Sheane. The Great Plateau of Northern Rhodesia: Being Some Impressions of the Tanganyika Plateau. London: Edward Arnold, 1911.

Pp. xxiii, 360; 40 plates; 1 map

Yale: Efg 911G

[This is a general source on all the tribes on the plateau, including among many others the Bemba. Chapters on the ethnography of the region include: The Crocodile Kings; Native Legal Notions; Animism and Witchcraft; The Plateau Native: Initiation, Marriage and Divorce; Birth and Death; Village Social Life; Village Arts and Industries; and Native Husbandry. A good deal of the book deals with general matters and with the life of the Europeans in the area. While it is likely that the material on the Bemba in this volume is good, it is scattered in nature and is used extensively by Richards (see 2: Richards this file) and others. It has not, therefore, been processed for the Bemba file. —Analyst]
